Concept note

BACKGROUND OF THE CONFERENCE

The COVID 19 pandemic has drastically affected individuals, societies and economies and has prompted the whole world to focus on ways to manage global disasters. The pandemic has resulted in a tangible impact on the physical, psychological and economic systems across the world. The disruptions brought about by the pandemic have revealed the need for being proactive during disruptive times through preparedness as well as management of crisis situations. This has brought to fore the need for competencies to deal with and adapt to challenging situations through positive behaviours and responses. Hence, in the present times of unprecedented changes, life skills have once again gained critical importance.

Life skills have been defined as “the abilities for adaptive and positive behaviour that enable individuals to deal effectively with the demands and challenges of everyday life” (WHO). Life skills education targets the four crucial dimensions of knowledge, attitudes and values, skills and behaviours to equip the individual to not only cope with but also transform challenges faced.

The need for the conference stems from the felt necessity to explore the role of life skills in the effective and humane management of the present as well as future crisis.

This international online conference aims to explore life skills in the context of crisis management.

OBJECTIVES OF THE CONFERENCE

- To explore new vistas in the spectrum of life skills during challenging times
- To discuss the application of life skills for crisis management
- To facilitate networking and collaboration among academicians, researchers, students and practitioners of life skills globally
- To serve as a forum for cross-sectional and multidisciplinary dialogue between researchers, practitioners and policy makers on issues related to life skills and crisis management
